REMARKS OF MR. FINNELL, OF NICHOLAS.

ion, delivered in committee of the Whole. House of Representatives, January 10, 1846. Mr. FINNELL said, that he had determined, when the discussion of this question begun, that he would sit silently by, and listen patiently to the suggestions of his senior's in years and political wisdom, and finally record his vote according to the honest dictates of his heart after a full hearing had been given to the champions for and against the bill. It were well perhaps, said he, if I had kept my purpose; but the discussion having been thus far kept, as if by common consent among the junior members. he being the youngest member on the floor, would so far forego his original purpose as to claim the indulgence of the committee for a very few moments The time is rapidly coming Mr. Chairman, when headed fathers who are sitting around us, and the the reins of government must pass from the greyyoung, the vigorous, and imaginative of the present generation must assume the places of the departed. This truth is abundantly manifest, said Mr. F., in the fact that there are more young gentlemen on the floor of the Hall now than there has been for many, many years. There is a growing disposition in the minds of the people to cherish and promote the honest aspirations of the young men of the country. It is therefore perhaps proper, it not indeed necessary. that that class-the young-should interchange opinions freely and candidly-not forgetting however, the respect due to the opinions of the Fathers of the Republic. Consultations of this sort promote harmony and concert of action-a most desirable aim when all are laboring for the common

Mr. F. said he was astonished, nay, mortified beyond measure, at the course which some gentlemen had seen fit to pursue in the discussion of this question. Pacty feeling had been appealed to! Party titles lad Seen hackneyed. In the name of our common country, said Mr. F., are we never to reach a point where we shall be above the influence of party! This, sir, is no time for an appeal to passions-those deep fountains of feeling affecting the very vitals of the nation. In the discussion of this question, I conceive it proper for us to lift ourselves above party and its influences-meet and commune together as a band of brothers seeking to promote the wealth and prosperity of our glorious Commonwealth.

The simple question, as I understand it, said Mr. F. is, shall the people have the right to say whether they desire a Convention to alter or amend the Constitution, or shall they be denied that right! For myself, said he, they shall be permitted to express their will I am in favor of the bill. I cast my vote freely. In tions doing so, I discharge what I believe to be my duty to my constituents. To them alone am I responsi-The question is not now shall the Constitution be amended! It is altogether a different question. The IX article of our State Constitution prescribes the mode of revising the Constitution, beginning thus: "When experience shall point out the habits of society so bitterly opposed to their own necessity of amending this Constitution, and when a majority of all the members elected to each House of the General Assembly, shall within the first twenty days of their stated annual session concurin passing a law for taking the sense of the good people of this Commonwealth as to the necessity expediency of calling a Convention, it shall be the duty of the several Sheriffs and others returning officers at the next general election, &c. &c. the 2nd section of the 10th article, it is declared. "that all power is inherent in the people, and all free governments are founded on their authority and instituted for their peace, safety and happiness. For the advancement of these ends they have at all times an unationable and indefeasable right to alter, reform, or abolish their government in such manner as they may think proper." Here, by the Constitution o our State, the power is clearly set forth. All that is proposed by the bill under consideration, is to ascertain at the polls the sense of the people as to the necessity and expediency of calling the Convention. But, said Mr. F., the gentleman from Franklin,

(Mr. Harlan,) desires this bill to be defeated because upon a discussion of the Constitution before the people, the abolitionists of the North would pour in upon us and would agitate our people on the question of slavery-they would divide us! Kentuckians! said Mr. F., I appeal to you! Is there a man in this House—is there a decent man in the land who would suffer himself to be led from the -who could be swaved from the high road of duty by the whinings of abolition fanatics? If such a man there be, I call upon you in the name of that man; the father of our country*-to cast him out from amongst us-for he is not worthy a place among Kentuckians. The gentleman himself, if I have not been deceived in the last man in this world that would listen to the sickening cant of political abolitionists. Yet he. even he, is not less susceptible of being influenced by "outsiders," than are the gallant people whom I have the honor to represent. Sir, there is a principle abroad in the whole land which defies any such interference. My friend from Mason, (Mr. Waller,) in connexion with the fears of my friend from Franklin, has added that, of the exultation of abolition ists abroad, at the news of the passage of this bill; that they are watching with interest our proceedings here, and will regard them with pleasure. suppose they do. Are we to be deterred from the performance of that which we believe to be just and proper, because for sooth, it will afford pleasure some we may dislike. Assuredly not. Yet sir, I do think the gentlemen are manufacturing phan-I cannot believe that speech is to be restrained and debate to be stifled in Kentucky for such a cause-nor do I believe that the abolition party is looking with such intense interest to our action upon this subject. It may be true that there are some abroad who would be gratified to see the way opened for a free discussion of the question of slavery; hut are we to be deterred from permitting our people to say whether they want it discussed or not, lest in doing so, we may afford pleasure to such persons. Nay, I go further; are we to smother discussion for fear our fundamental law upon this or any other believe, that if to-morrow, all law was abolishedif the people were turned loose, and our Commonwealth was to be re-established by the people, they would, in its re-establishment, evidence the same characterized similar efforts made by our fathers. If, however. I am mistaken in this; if there is not virtue enough in the people to entrust them with a right guarantied to them by their Constitution, the republic is rotten and is unworthy of support. Let it tremble no longer-let it fall-let it perish forever. But, sir, in the name of the people, I protest against such insinuations; I protest against such allegations against the fame of my countrymen.

Is there a gentleman here who believes that the citizens, I voted against a Convention, I believed tenure by which our slaves are held is endangered you incapable of determining for yourselves on this by the passage of this bill! I cannot conceive a subject." I should fear their frowns and maledicreason for such an opinion. Look at popular opin- tions, were I to pursue such a course. But, sir, I ion in Kentucky in relation to this subject. It does hope to go home to the bosom of my constituents seem to me, that recent events should be sufficient to with their good wishes. They took ine, but a brief allay the fears of the most timid. Mr. F. said he did while ago, a poor stranger boy-whom poverty and not believe, if a Convention was called to-morrow, misfortune had driven from the home of his childthere would be a delegate elected with a view to the hood—they cherished and protected me—they promodification of the tenure of slave property, or to moted me in my professional career—they fostered cussion with that view. The gentleman from Franklin manifested some alarm upon this question, because he said our great Emporium-our well-beloved and much-petted daughter Lauisville-had not lang since heen represented in an Abolition Convention in Cincinnati. and that there might be danger in that quarter. I was gratified at the promptness with which the gentleman from Louisville, (Mr. Pope.) replied to this charge. He was indignant at what he regarded an attempt to injure the fame of his people. He said, it was true a man from Louisville had gone to Cininnati, and lead taken a seat in an Abolition Convention-had most shamefully falsified the character of Louisville, and the State generally, and returned to Louisville an object of universal loatleing and contempt. So great, indeed, was the popular fury against lam, that it was with great difficulty an ontraged and slandered people were prevented from administering to him summarily the punishment high the magnitude of his offence demanded.

The right way, Mr. Chairman, said Mr. F., totest centlemen on this question, is, for each man to answer for his own constituents, and, if he believes tle n incapable of determining whether they will have a Convention or not-to be on the safe side, he had ofter vote against the bill. We fear not to trust We see no breakers ahead upon which are to be lost by our own will. We are a free people. We love liberty and we love good government, and I believe with DeTocqueville, that, "Providence has given the people of this day a light, which our orerathers did not posses, and has allowed us to discern fundamental causes in the history of the world, which the obscurity of the past concealed from them"-and, I as firmly believe, that the nation is yet rapidly advancing in knowledge of the cience of government; and if changes-aye, radical changes-in our fundamental law are not denanded now, the time is not far distant when those changes must be made, and their necessity will beome apparent to every one.

Trace the history of this nation from its infancy o the present hour, and you behold a spectacle of moral sublimity and grandeur not afforded by the history of any other naturn apon carth. We are, indeed, a peculiar people. Whatever of party ranfor there may have been-whatever of error they may at any time have faller, into, the great moral tendon of the public heart withstood the shock of party misrale, of factious opposition, and the corapting influences of error, and we were advised of danger only by a prompt return of its healthy pulsa-

The coming of our fithers to this country, cold. leak and unpromising as it then was-abandoning high social position and the means of certain subsistence-was induced, not by a desire to improve their situation or increase their wealth, lot, persecuted by the mother country, and disgusted by the principles, they went forth from the land of their fathers to seek some rude and unfrequented part of the world, where they could live in conformity to their own opinions, and worship God in freedom. The call which summoned them was intellectual; and, in facing the inevitable sufferings of exile, their object was the trimmph of an idea, which involved not merely a religious doctrine, but corresponded, in many points, to the most absolute aemocratic and republican theories. Such, sir, said Mr. F., was the character of our ancestors, and the flame of liberty has burned brighter and brighter each successive cour since the first flickering torch was lighted by the Pilgrims at Plymouth-it has grown like a vast beacon on a hill, which, after it has diffused its warmth round, tinges the distant horizon with its glow. Generation has succeeded generation, until ten have passed away, yet the same love of liberty, and the same spirit of resistance to oppression, vet pre-eminently distinguishes the people, and, I am justified in the belief, that the lastorian of this country, a thousand years hence, will not be called upon to record an opinion, a custom, law or event, which will not clearly indicate the nation's origin.

We have been appealed to, to reverence and venerate the fundamental law of the land-to stand by, protect and guard it as the apple of our eye. trust, said Mr. F., I have a proper regard for the institutions of my country. I love the very name of Kentucky. I honor the noble bearing and chivalry of her sons. I have not words to tell you of her daughters. Behold them now around me-their bright eyes and smiling faces are chroniclers more potent far than word;-they speak for themselves. In these virtues I yield superiority to no man.

We are called radicals—this bill is called a hobby its advocates demagogues. I, sir, am a young politician-I honestly desire so to act, in all matters upon this floor, as shall best promote my country and my country's good. I shall not strive to play the demagozne-I scorn it-yet, I wish it distinctly understood. I am not to be deterred in the performance of any act that I believe to be right, for fear of being called a demagague. If there be cankering sores on the budy politic, then, I think, a radical change is necessary. If all is well, the people will not hesitate to say so-the Convention will be rejected, and the public mind once more quieted. The ery of radicalism, sounded by a gentleman who stands so high in the esteem of all parties as my friend from Franklin, (Mr. Harlan,) is well calen lated to terrify and alarm the juniors. do I remember the last great speech I heard from that gentleman. It was meen the veto power-the radical amendment of the Federal Constitution, by which that power should be greatly lessened. That noble speech still lingers on my ears. I shall never forget it-for I had been taught, from my infancy, to admire the speaker. His doctrine was good Whig doctrine—his voice was music to my ears. That was in 1844. How different is the position of the gentleman to-day. Then, he thought it proper to a mend the fundamental law of the nation. Now. it is radicalism to vote the power to amend the Constitution of a State. For noyself, Mr. Chairman, I subject will be altered. I sincerely and honestly must confess, if there be no danger in altering, in an essential particular, the great charter of the Union. I cannot conceive the danger, when we come to amend that of a single star in the constellation. We can touch with impunity the law which guides discreet caution, and masterly statesmenship which and governs the whole family, but we dare not touch that which directs and governs one of the members! Oh! consistency, thou art a jewel!

I am for the people to say whether they desire the State Constitution amended; and in voting them the power to speak on this subject. I do it with the most perfect assurance that my people will not abuse the trust. They are a generous, noble constituency. have no fear of their tearing down the Constitution. Gentlemen appose this hill, they say, because the crisis has not arrived. The country does not detarnd the passage of this law. I learn from a gentleman on my right, that at least twenty members of this House came here pledged to their constituents gentlemen have annunneed themselves for it since they came here, and say their people demand it .-Together they constitute a very large minority if not indeed a maj crity; and I regard it as the bounden duty of every safe and prudent legislator to respect minorities. But Mr. Chairman, said Mr. F., I fear I have detained this committee much longer than has been agreeable to them or profitable to myself. I liope the fears of my friends in reference to abolition interference may yet be calmed. But if those fears are real. I yet see no good reason for delay. Let ns begin the faithe at once. If such a conflict is inevitable why postpone it! Proscrastination may result in great evil. THE SUB-TREASURY.

The following clear and practical article we take from the Journal of Commerce. The position of that paper will give its remarks on this and kindred topics weight at Washinston, and with the opposi-Na paper did more to elect Mr. Polk: none stands by him closer in his free trade theories. It it anti-Whig, and, for all practical purposes, as decidedly Loco as it well can be. The only difference between it, and the regular organs, is, as far as we understand it, that it is not a mere party pa-

The whole measure evidently belongs to past ages. It is suited to the condition of society before banks or paper money, or the great system of credits was introduced. It would earry us back to wheelbarrows trundling specie about town. The bill is a blot upon our statesmanship, and altogether behind

It is moreover a bill which will never go into operation according to its theory. Congress may pass it forty times, and annex what penalties they willthey cannot introduce such a monstrosity into New York as the payment into and out of a sub-treasury of a hundred thousand dollars a day in coin; nor will the public endure see injurious an agitation of the money market as would result from the keeping of government balances looked up in an iron chest A real enforcement of the bill would, in our judgment, overthrow any administration, however popul The money must and will and ought to be in the banks. By the facility of checks and bank notes, the whole business of this great city is transacted with very little labor. Hundreds of millions are settled without the payment of anything in specie, except change. Yet every transaction is for specie, and every check and bank note is payalde in coin. When coin is wanted, it is drawn. paper is more convenient, it is taken. The government receives and disburses twenty-five millions of dollars annually. As the business is now done, every transaction is now for specie. The importer pays his band in bank notes, or gives his check on the bank. These are payable in coin; but the government has no use for coin in ordinary business It might demand specie for every bank note and check. But its own creditors do not want it. The government therefore acts like an individual. It places all its notes and checks in a bank daily, and draws its own checks for the various sums it has to pay. By this simple process the vast labor and hazard of counting and moving specie are avoided, and yet every transaction is for coin. After people have experienced the facility of doing business in this way, they cannot be driven back to the artual counting and moving of specie, except when specie is wanted.

The derangement of the currency under the theory of this bill, carried out, would be oppressive. Our banks have now perhaps eight millions of specie.—

That money is in the highest sense in the treasury of its owner, when it is in the most safe and convenient place for his use.

The notion that the sub-treasury will render the oublic money more safe, is a very strange one. The money on the plan proposed, is to be taken from the responsibility of a bank, with a million or two initlions of dollars of capital, watched over by a company of officers and directors, and placed in the charge of an individual who will give bonds at the utmest not beyond half a million. More ing of one man. Why, the money will not be half s) safe as it is now, though the same prudent man should be appointed who was appointed before. We presume that no bank has an amount of government money equal to its capital. To collect the whole amount of deposits from all the banks, into the hands of one man, with security not equal to one quarter of the amount at hazard, would be a great wrong. It the government would make their money secure, let them leave it in those places of deposit, which the unanimous voice of the commercial com munity declares most safe. Let them demand stocks as further security if it is at all necessary, and above all, let them so arrange the Tariff that the revenue will be rather under than over the expenditures, so that there will be no money on hand to lose, and anthorise the Secretary of the Treasury to make up the deficiencies by treasury notes, to go out when the funds are insufficient, and be purchased back when there is a surplus. The present surplus might perhaps be applied to the purchase of U.S. five per. cents, which can be had at about par, and if during the year there should be a deficiency the stock might be issued again. Some such process, acting as a regulator, would be economical for the country, and save all agitation in the market, and withal give the greatest possible security to the funds, for surpluses not existing could not be squandered.

Mr. P. C. Hardin, who was confined to his room several days by indisposition, resumed his seat in the Senate yesterday, in restored health. Ilis nunerous friends, in and out of Frankfort, will be happy as we at this announcement, for he is not unly a most estimable gentleman, but an able legislalor.

We have received numerous complaints of the failure of our paper to reach its destination regularly at several points in the State, and especially south and south-west of Louisville. We need not say we feel mortification and indignation at the ill treatment our patrons experience. On yesterday we were advised by a letter, that ten subscribers in Muhlenburg have not received a single paper for more than four weeks. We have done every thing in our power to remove the ground of such complaints. We know that no fault is ascribable to plaints. We know that no fault is ascribable to the Frankfort postmaster. In all respects whatever, he is a most excellent officer; and he knows that our papers are promptly mailed and well enveloped. There can be no sufficient excuse then for the failures complained of. There is unquestionably negligence or frand, one or both, somewhere. We made public complaint, and have also written to the Department heretofare on the subject. Instead of redress, the grievanges have increased. We shall mark this paragraph for the eye of the Post Master General, and we can tell him that he is very likely to hear of these wrongs to the people of Kentucky from other complaintnts and in other modes of communication.

APPREHENDED WAR WITH MEXICO. - There seems to be a very strong probability of a war between the United States and Mexico. The late revolution in that miserable country which enthroned Paredes as Dictator, was instigated chiefly by hostility to our government. The revolutionary party, now in power, have necessarily interrupted the amicable relations between the two governments, and we think it very likely they will come to blows. It may become necessary to wage war against Mexieo, though we deem the necessity a great humiliation, such is her despicable character and condition. We have been shown a letter from a distinguished gentleman at Washington, speaking in strong terms of the probability of war. Our army in Texas has moved to the bank of the Rio Grande, and we suppose a strong squadron of the navy is already in the Gulf. We shall unaffectedly rejoice if we get through this difficulty honorably, without war, for we should deem it a great calamity to have a war even with so contemptible a power. It may lead to serious interruption of relations with England; for our people are prone to the opinion, whether well or ill-founded, that that ambitions and mischievous overnment is at the bottom of Mexican hostility owards us.

OF LATEST IMPROVEMENTS, by which, not only the drapery, but the lace and eyes are given perfect in all their beauty of color and expression. Together with his late and valuable discovery of coloring the back ground, which is universally admired, and go indispensable in beautifying and finishing a miniature portrait in good taste.

A favorable opportunity is now offered to the ladies and gentlemen of Frankfort and vicinity, to obtain Miniature Portraits in the most perfect style of execution, which for life-like beauty, distinctures and accuracy, are acknowledged to be megnalled. Mr. Buswell has opened his Gallery at the corner of Main and Ann streets, over the Drug store of W. L. Crutcher, near the Weisiger House, where he is prepared to receive ladies and gentlemen to take their likenesses in any kind of weather by effording him from ten to sixty seconds sitting. None need now hesitate in consequence of the heretofare objection to Daguerreotypes, viz. dimness of the eyes and imperfection of colors. Mr. B., by his late improvements, pledges himself to give the eyes and hair perfect with all their brightness and colors. Perfect likenesses are warranted and satisfaction given before any change is made. Mr. Bowell is prepared to give instructions in his late improvements, which are repared to give instructions in his late improvements, which are negnalled, and warrants all of his miniature portraits to remain
